general goal // Informing the student of the connection between many of the legal systems and rules currently applied and the previous legal systems and rules that evolved from or were influenced by them 2- The student's awareness of the true position of modern legal rules and systems in the chain of development of human civilizations and to determine what origin they came from and by what system they were affected. 3- The nature of legal study is incompatible with the means of research in the decline of applied sciences. It is not possible to create artificial experiments in laboratories to confirm the reality of a legal phenomenon. In order to confirm the validity of a legal rule, the student must study what actually happened in history, which explains how legal rules and systems arose. History has passed, how did it develop and interact with others, what is its fate, and what are the factors that affected its development. By studying these matters, the student can understand the science of law.

Course Objectives
general goal // 1- The student must know that international humanitarian law is a set of rules that aim to limit the effects of armed conflicts for humanitarian reasons. This law protects persons who do not participate directly or actively in hostilities or who no longer participate directly or actively in them, and it also imposes restrictions on the means and methods of warfare. 2- The student must know the objectives of international humanitarian law 3- The need to know the legal status of the citizen and the foreigner. 4- It is necessary for the student to know the international conflict of laws by introducing the conflict of laws and the rules for resolving the conflict of laws and knowing the scope of application of the conflict of laws rules. 5- The student must know the issue of distinguishing between international humanitarian law, which governs the behavior of parties involved in armed conflicts (jus in bello), and general international law enshrined in the United Nations Charter, which regulates the legality of a state's resort to the use of armed force against another state. (jus ad bellum jus ad bellum). The Charter prohibits resorting to force, but includes two exceptions: cases of self-defense against an armed attack, and when the United Nations Security Council authorizes the use of armed force. International humanitarian law does not examine whether or not there are legitimate reasons behind the outbreak of a conflict, but rather seeks to regulate the behavior of parties to a conflict immediately after its outbreak.
